

ABSTRACT

A process for producing crystalline form I of cabergoline, which process comprises crystallization of the desired form from a toluene/diethyl ether mixture comprising raw cabergoline, followed by recovery and drying of the resulting crystals. A new solvate form V of cabergoline, useful as an intermediate, is also provided